TRUMP SHOT

By: John Cole and Kim Lyons

BUTLER, Pa. — Former President Donald Trump is recovering Saturday after a shooting at a campaign rally in Pennsylvania that left a rally-goer and the gunman dead, authorities said.

Two people were critically injured in the incident, according to the U.S. Secret Service.

Shortly after Trump took the stage at about 6 p.m.

ET, several loud pops could be heard, and Secret Service agents whisked him off the stage, blood visible on his face. Trump briefly pumped his fist at the crowd before he left the stage. Video from the incident appeared to show Trump reacting to something hitting his ear.

Saturday's event was to be Trump's final campaign rally before he formally accepts the Re-

By Jyll Phillips, Lincoln-Sentinel

In May of 1984 22-year old Carly Seirer (later Errebo) made a life changing decision. With her father's help, she borrowed $10,000 from Saline Valley Bank to open her own clothing store.

For the next few months, she worked hard at making the store, which was on the west side of Anderson's Dept.

Store, the place she wanted to be. They built shelves, rearranged display fixtures and dolled up the space to make it uniquely her own.

"I could have had either side, but I wanted this one because of the basement," she said in an earlier interview with the Sentinel.

Women in the workforce in other than domestic type jobs, was a rarity before

WWII. Between 1950 and 1984, the number of women in the workforce rose dramatically. When Errebo opened her business, business owners were typically male. At least one wager was made among local business owners as to how long her business would last.

Now, 40 years later, she has won. The store, its business model and her exuberant attitude have not changed a lot since then. Improvements to the building have been ongoing with new lighting, new HVAC and constantly changing displays. She has moved from hand-written records to a sophisticated computer system for maintaining inventory, customer

Summer EBT will help feed children

The U.S. Department of Agriculture announced it is providing $100 million in grants to help states, Tribal Nations, and U.S. territories implement SUN Bucks – a new, permanent program that helps families buy groceries for their children during the summer. SUN Bucks, also known as Summer EBT, is part of the SUN Programs: USDA's Summer Nutrition Programs for Kids that lower costs for families and improve food and nutrition security during summer break when kids lose access to school meals.

SUN Bucks provides families in participating states a $120 grocery benefit for each eligible school-aged child to buy food at grocery stores, farmers markets, and other authorized retailers. USDA estimates that when SUN Bucks is fully implemented, it will reach more than 30 million children nationwide.

The one-time grants will support development and modifications to state technology systems that are needed to effectively run the program with proper controls and integrity. The funds are available to all agencies implementing SUN Bucks this year, as well as those planning to launch the program next summer.

"One of USDA's top priorities is helping more states offer SUN Bucks in future years," said Cindy Long, administrator for the Food and Nutrition Service. "This funding will make it easier for states to get the program up and running and ensure it runs smoothly for participants."

The SUN Programs work together to lower costs for families and tackle childhood hunger during the summer months. Families are encouraged to participate in all programs available to them and can visit USDA's SUN Programs website to learn more.

USDA touches the lives of all Americans each day in so many positive ways. To learn more, visit www.usda.gov.

About World Listening Day

Shhh! Lend me your ear. Listen up, as I'm not going to say this again. World Listening Day is soon! The goal of this July 18 holiday is to raise awareness of the acoustic ecology or environment that surrounds you. It is also a day better understand the soundscape and to celebrate good listening practices. There are two key communication skills humans need to successfully circumnavigate their daily lives. They are talking and listening. Most of us have mastered the gift of gab with little or no difficulty. But, our listening skills often leave something to be desired. We encourage you to use this holiday to get in tune with the soundscape, and to learn how to really hear what people are telling you.

K-State tackles aquifer depletion with new tech

By Scout Nelson

Kansas Ag Connection

Kansas State University researchers are spearheading efforts to conserve the dwindling Ogallala Aquifer. Experts from various organizations gathered at Irsik and Doll Feedyard in Garden City to showcase innovative water purification technology.

A water purification trailer, capable of filtering water to reuseable standards, is being demonstrated across the state. Jas Dale, from Western Kansas Irrigation, emphasized the trailer's versatility, highlighting its potential applications in agriculture and even municipalities.

Susan Metzger, from K-State's Kansas Water Institute, underscored the growing momentum around water conservation among agricultural producers. "We looked for a way to bring those conversations together across the supply chain, to really think of how we can provide a sustainable future for the livestock industry in western Kansas," Metzger said.

Kansas Geological Survey data reveals significant variations in aquifer depletion across the state, with some areas facing imminent challenges. Bill Golden, a K-State economist, stressed the importance of economic viability in water conservation efforts.

He highlighted the potential for increased profits through practices like conservative seed and fertilizer application, which can also reduce water usage.

While challenges remain, the focus is on finding sustainable solutions to protect the Ogallala Aquifer and ensure the long-term viability of agriculture in western Kansas.

Rural Road Safety Awareness Week

According to the Kansas Department of Transportation statistics, 242 people lost their lives in rural road crashes across the state compared to 143 urban traffic fatalities last year. This accounts for 63% of 2023 crash deaths statewide. Rural roads account for more than 115,000 miles of Kansas' nearly 139,000 public road miles.

To bring attention to the matter, Governor Laura Kelly announced today the Kansas Department of Transportation and the Drive To Zero Coalition are launching the annual Rural Road Safety Awareness Week. The campaign will take place July 15-19.

"Raising awareness of rural road safety is critical to saving lives," Governor Laura Kelly said. "This safety campaign emphasizes the importance of following the rules of the road to reduce risks for all drivers, occupants, and surrounding motorists, especially on rural roads."

The weeklong observance is part of a nationwide campaign spearheaded by the National Center for Rural Road Safety. The theme for this safety week is "Life Between the Lines: Preventing Rural Roadway Departures."

Improved driving behavior and avoiding rural roadway departures are keys to traffic safety. A roadway departure crash occurs after a vehicle crosses an edge line or a center line. Head-on collisions are possible when a vehicle enters an opposing line of traffic. Rollovers and impacts with trees, utility poles, or other objects are common when a vehicle crosses an edge line.

For more information, visit the National Center for Rural Road Safety website at <https://ruralsafetycenter.org>.

OBITUARIES

Norman Clinton Greene
Oct. 6, 1930 - July 9, 2024

Norman Clinton Greene was born in rural Beverly Kansas on October 6, 1930 to Niles and Mary Chilcott Greene. He passed away on July 9, 2024 at the age of 93.

Norman wed Mary Ann Jarvis on October 28, 1951. She preceded him in death on October 19, 2000, 9 days before their 49th wedding anniversary. Together they had four children, Steven, Shirley, Susan, and Scott. Norm was united in marriage to Doris Winkel Slate on December 16, 2002 and their encore love story brought so much joy, love and light to our blended family. Doris departed this earthly world on January 3, 2023 leaving Norman broken hearted for the second time in his life.

In the spring of 1934, Norman moved to Jewell County with his parents and sister "Peg" (Marjorie) on a wagon and hay-rack pulled by a team of horses. He graduated from Jewell High School in 1948 and enlisted in the United States Air Force in January of 1951 where he served in San Antonio, Texas, Wichita Falls, Texas, Bushy Park, England, and El Paso, Texas until he was discharged with an Excellent Character Rating in October 1954.

Norman moved Mary Ann and his first born to the Greene Farmstead at the conclusion of his military career and worked the farming operation alongside his father, Niles. From 1957 - 1967 they welcomed three more children and built a new home. The family continued to manage the Grade A dairy operation, farm the land, and raise cattle. In 2013 Norman and Doris built a new home on the south edge of Jewell where they welcomed friends and family for visits over tea, pies, and homemade ice cream and enjoyed each other's company for their last 10 years together.

Norm will be remembered for his ornery nature, homemade ice cream, and woodworking skills. He was a proud military veteran, husband, father, grandfather, and great grandfather. He found joy in blacksmithing with restoring and building horse buggies, for which he won several awards, and taking his grandchildren on trail rides. He was a devoted cattleman, farmer, dairyman, and horseman. Throughout his extensive life, Norman was engaged in many civic organizations where he served on the Musser Fund Board of Directors and USD 279 School Board, was involved with the Kansas Livestock Association, lifetime member of the American Legion and VFW, supporter of FFA and 4-H, and a member of Jewell Christian Church. You could often find Norm in the stands at area school events supporting all the children he loved.

Norman's legacy will live on through the Greene Farmstead where the 7th generation of Greene's live, continue to farm, and raise cattle.

He was preceded in death by his parents, wives, Sister Peg, son-in-law Jeffery, brother Jerry, and beloved mule Kate.

Norman is survived by his sister in-law Phyllis Greene, Emporia, KS; four children - Steve (Susan) Greene, Jewell; Shirley (Steve) Up-schulte, Kansas City; Susan (Max) Bean, Glen Elder, KS; and Scott (Janelle) Greene, Jewell; six grandchildren - Nathan (Amber) Greene, Jewell, Kristy (Travis) Ladd Culp, Kansas City, MO, Jacob (Sara) Greene, McFarland, KS; Brittany (Matthew) Boyce, Valley Falls, KS; Chelsey Greene, Claytonia, NE; and Corbin Greene, Jewell; and six great-grandchildren - Sadie, Kinley, Dakota, Malia, Wade, and Bridger; seven step-children, 12 step-grandchildren, 20 step-great grandchildren, and four step-great great grandchildren; and numerous nieces, nephews and extended family, friends and coffee pals who will miss him and his ice cream dearly.

Visitation will take place at Jewell Christian Church on Friday, July 12 from 5:00 - 8:00 p.m. with family present from 6:00 - 8:00 p.m. Services will be held at Jewell Christian Church on Saturday, July 13, at 2:00 p.m., followed by graveside service at Wallace Cemetery, and cookie reception at Jewell Christian Church.

If you wish to memorialize Norman, he was deeply touched by the work of Solomon Valley Hospice, Jewell Christian Church, and Wallace Cemetery.

Editorial

Political demonization finally came to its natural conclusion

For the last eight plus years the national corporate media has been on a mission to destroy Donald Trump and the MAGA movement in any way possible. We have seen the lapdog press attack anything to do with Traditional American Values and denigrate anyone who doesn't follow the progressive left belief system.

Since the 1990's and earlier there was a shift away in journalism from objective reporting, doing what reporters are supposed to do, meaning the who - what - where - when and why of any given subject.

The new method is more of an advocacy journalism mode that up front finds a conclusion of the story, and the job of the writer is to bolster that preconceived determination. We used to call that propaganda.

What was witnessed Saturday, April 13th, was in many ways a culmination of years of portraying someone as a monster figure and waiting for an unhinged individual to get out and eliminate the manufactured threat.

The media isn't the only institution with a lack of professional ethics, however, our industry bears a responsibility to report in a factual manner at least as much natural human biases allow. Many of the worst offenders are owned by large corporations or by billionaires that subsidize those media organizations from other revenue sources.

The advent of new media players, operated by smaller companies and individuals, is part of the solution for a more common sense, responsible news landscape. The free market dictates whether those operations can survive or fail.

We encourage everyone not to take any source's word completely on any subject and do their own research to understand the facts of any controversial issue.

This election season is certainly a major turning point for the future of our republic.

Let's hope a well-informed and level-headed public is in a position to make the decisions that will have lasting effects on all of us for decades to come.

Post Rock Extension District

Are weeds showing up in your wheat stubble fields???

By Sandra L. Wick
K-State Research and Extension-Post Rock District Crop Production Agent

Now that the 2024 wheat harvest is complete, producers may be seeing weeds show up in their wheat stubble. NOW is the time to manage the weeds before they become uncontrollable! Stay tuned and I will share some management guidelines to remember.

Some places have received moisture so the weeds that have been suppressed by the canopy will grow rapidly once crop competition is removed. In addition, weeds that have emerged through the wheat canopy will be damaged during harvest and will quickly begin regrowth. Delaying control can result in lost soil moisture that could be used for crop production, as well as weed seed production which will cause difficulties in the future.

According to Dr. Sarah Lancaster, K-State Research and Extension, Weed specialist, "When thinking about weed control in wheat stubble, there are two priorities - controlling already emerged weeds and preventing later flushes." Making applications before weeds exceed 4 to 6 inches is necessary for good control of already emerged weeds. Residual herbicides are needed to reduce the number of herbicide applications needed to control multiple flushes of weeds.

Lancaster stresses that despite a growing number of herbicide-resistant weeds, glyphosate plus 2,4-D LVE and/or dicamba remain important for weed control in wheat stubble. However, these herbicides alone are not likely to provide adequate control of pigweeds or kochia, especially when applied in the hot, dry conditions that are common after wheat harvest. Be careful about making herbicide applications in high temperatures. Here are some herbicide options commonly used to control weeds after wheat harvest. Thanks to Dr. Sarah Lancaster for providing this information in the K-State Research and Extension, Agronomy Newsletter from June 20, 2024.

Paraquat (Gramoxone, others) is a Group 22 herbicide that can work well in place of glyphosate to control emerged pigweed and kochia. Paraquat is a contact herbicide, so spray coverage is critical. Spray volumes of 20 gallons/acre or higher are preferred, especially on larger weeds or denser stands. If sprayed at less than 20 GPA, flat fan nozzles are required. Paraquat needs to be applied with a non-ionic surfactant or oil concentrate to enhance the surface coverage of the plant foliage. Also, remember that there is a requirement for handlers and applicators to complete training every three years to use paraquat.

If planning to plant corn or sorghum next spring, a tank mix of paraquat with Atrazine (Group 5) will enhance the control of emerged weeds and provide some residual weed control. Atrazine labels have recently changed so that the only non-crop uses of atrazine permitted are in wheat-fallow-wheat, wheat-corn-fallow, and wheat-sorghum-fallow rotations. In these rotations, it is still important to be aware of the total amount of atrazine you are applying to each field in a given year and stay below the maximum rate allowed for your field. Metribuzin is another Group 5 herbicide that can be used instead of atrazine to enhance control and provide some residual activity. There are two benefits of using metribuzin instead of atrazine. First, there are more options for crop rotation. Atrazine limits crop options to corn or sorghum in the next season, whereas metribuzin can be applied as

If you're happy and you know it clap your hands

"If you're happy and you know it, clap your hands." A song familiar to all of us. However, how familiar is the awareness of our body clues of feeling happy to all of us to truly "know it"? Recognizing body clues and sensations to aid in the next steps of labeling emotions is the first key skill in emotional intelligence. Unfortunately, these are not skills we are taught.

Mental health development across the lifespan is as vital as physical and cognitive development. Understanding the biology of our nervous system, the sensations and body clues linked to emotions, and the outcomes of attending to these sensations and body clues, allows us to increase wanted outcomes within our lives. There is a growing trend towards normalizing the practice of developing mental health skills among adults, mirroring the emphasis long placed on physical and academic education. This shift recognizes that mental well-being is integral to overall health and productivity in adulthood. Initiatives promoting mindfulness, stress management, and emotional resilience are gaining traction in workplaces and community settings. Employers are offering resources such as mental health days, counseling services, and workshops on mental health topics. By prioritizing mental health alongside professional development, organizations aim to create healthier, more productive environments where individuals can thrive personally and professionally. This holistic approach acknowledges that mental health skills are essential for navigating the complexities of adult life and achieving long-term well-being.

Dr. Mark Brackett, from Yale University, is renowned for his work on emotional intelligence and the role of emotions in learning, decision-making, and overall well-being. Brackett's research and teachings focus on how sensations in the body signal emotional states and how acknowledging these feelings can enhance emotional regulation and decision-making. He emphasizes the significance of recognizing comfort levels as a crucial aspect of emotional awareness, suggesting that attunement to one's emotional comfort can lead to better self-regulation and improved interpersonal interactions.

Practicing these skills is as simple as getting curious about what is happening within our body and noticing if our body is comfortable or uncomfortable. Regularly check in with yourself throughout the day to assess your emotional sensations. Ask yourself how you're feeling and whether any discomfort or stress is present. Get curious about yourself.

Developing emotional awareness and comfort with these skills is a gradual process that requires patience, self-compassion, and consistency. Be gentle with yourself and celebrate small improvements along the way. By incorporating these practices into your routine, you can cultivate greater emotional awareness, understand your comfort levels more deeply, and create more outcomes you desire to have. You will also truly be able to live the song, "If you're happy and you know it clap your hands."

SPICE UP YOUR LIFE - LINDSAY YOUNG

'Guava' your friends a tropical dessert to try

can find the original post at <https://mission-food.com/guava-bars/>. I added extra guava paste in my version.

Guava Bars

Crust Ingredients

- 1 cup butter, room temperature
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups flour

Topping Ingredients

- 21 ounces guava paste, cut into 1/4-inch thick slices
- 1 cup old-fashioned or quick oats
- 1/2 cup butter, cold and diced
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup flour

Directions

Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Prepare a nine-by-13-inch baking pan by lining the bottom and up and over all four sides with parchment paper to help remove the bars after they're done. Set it aside.

For the crust, beat the butter and sugar together for several minutes until it is light and fluffy. Beat in the salt and flour until the mixture is smooth, and then press it evenly into the bottom of the prepared baking pan.

Cover the entire surface of the crust layer with slices of guava paste. You can cut it into smaller pieces to fill gaps, too. (You may have just a bit left over for you to snack on.)

Add the oats, butter, salt, sugar and flour to a food processor and pulse until the mixture kind of looks like wet sand and everything is well combined.

Sprinkle the topping evenly over the guava and bake for 40 to 45 minutes or until the topping is golden brown.

Let the bars cool completely before using the parchment paper to remove them from the pan. Slice them and store in an airtight container.

I came home with one guava bar leftover from the cookout, so I guess you could say they were a success. They were absolutely delicious. If you've never worked with guava paste before, it's jelly-like, but it's also super sticky.

The flavor is fruity but not overly sweet, so it is an especially good filling for people who aren't into sugary treats. That, combined with the buttery shortcake crust and the nuttiness of the oatmeal topping, makes for a great dessert.

It turns out I was right about my guava obsession. The next time I manage to spot a big tin of it at the grocery store, it will probably land in my pantry again. This time, though, it probably won't last nearly as long.

Trump posted to his verified account on the Truth Social platform at 8:42 p.m. and appeared to confirm he was shot.

"I want to thank The United States Secret Service, and all of Law Enforcement, for their rapid response on the shooting that just took place in Butler, Pennsylvania. Most importantly, I want to extend my condolences to the family of the person at the Rally who was killed, and also to the family of another person that was badly injured," Trump wrote. "It is incredible that such an act can take place in our Country. I was shot with a bullet that pierced the upper part of my right ear. I knew immediately that something was wrong in that I heard a whizzing sound, shots, and immediately felt the bullet ripping through the skin. Much bleeding took place, so I realized then what was happening. GOD BLESS AMERICA!"

Anthony Guglielmi, chief of communications for the U.S. Secret Service, said in a statement that "a suspected shooter fired multiple shots toward the stage from an elevated position outside of the rally venue."

"U.S. Secret Service personnel neutralized the shooter, who is now deceased," Guglielmi said. "U.S. Secret Service quickly responded with protective measures and Former President Trump is safe. One spectator was killed, and two spectators were critically injured. This incident is currently under investigation. and the Secret Service has notified the FBI."

Butler County District Attorney Richard Goldinger said on CNN that he shooter was "outside of the grounds, so to speak. Quite frankly I don't know how he would have gotten to the location he was ... we're gonna have to figure out how he got there."

President Joe Biden condemned the shooting in a brief statement from Delaware.

"There's no place in America for this kind of violence," Biden said.

"It's sick, it's one of the reasons we have to unite this country," he added. "We cannot allow for this to be happening. We cannot be like this, we cannot condone this."

Biden said he had tried to contact Trump and that the former president was with his doctors and appeared to be doing well.

Officials with the FBI and Pennsylvania State Police said their agencies were assisting the U.S. Secret Service in the investigation.

Pennsylvania Gov. Josh Shapiro said on X he had been briefed on the situation.

"Violence targeted at any political party or political leaders is absolutely unacceptable," Shapiro wrote. "It has no place in Pennsylvania or the United States."

GOP U.S. Senate candidate David McCormick, who spoke at the rally before Trump, told Fox News there were a number of shots, and Secret Service agents attended to Trump. He said it was difficult to tell where the shots came from, but he said he heard seven or eight shots.

"And then, sadly, someone behind me, up in the bleachers was definitely wounded, and there was a lot of blood," he said. "And, you know, the police came in and helped carry that person out of this fan so they could get the care they needed."

McCormick said he was sitting in the front row, to Trump's right as he was facing the crowd. "I couldn't tell whether it was one gun or two, but there were seven or eight shots, just one right, one right after another."

As Trump rallied in western Pennsylvania on Saturday, first lady Jill Biden was also in the region to attend an Italian Sons and Daughters of America dinner in Pittsburgh. And in the eastern half of the commonwealth, Vice President Kamala Harris was in Philadelphia to deliver the keynote address at the Asian Pacific Islander American Vote Presidential Town Hall on Saturday.

Saturday's appearance in the Keystone State was Trump's fifth visit to Pennsylvania this year.

Butler is a reliably red county where Trump won by double digits in the 2016 and 2020 general elections. Trump's rally in Butler a few days before the 2020 presidential election was well-attended, although there were transportation issues for those attempting to exit the rally.

Biden also been no stranger to Pennsylvania, making 10 appearances the state so far, mostly in the southeast. Biden campaigned through the state last Sunday, appearing at a traditionally Black church in Northwest Philadelphia, and speaking to supporters in Philadelphia and Harrisburg.
