Hunter Meier earns Fellowship

By Grant Guggisberg, Public Information Officer
Carl R. Ice College of Engineering, Kansas State University

A Kansas State University civil engineering student received a $10,000 grant from the Federal Highway Administration as part of its Dwight David Eisenhower Transportation Fellowship Program.

Hunter Meier, master's student in the department of civil engineering, Lincoln, received the fellowship, which is a merit-based award given annually to students pursuing degrees in transportation-related disciplines. In addition to the grant, Meier participated in a poster presentation at the Transportation Research Board's annual meeting in January as part of the fellowship.

Meier's current research focuses on establishing an evaluation process for determining the condition of prestressed and post-tensioned concrete railroad ties, some of which are 50 years old. His goal is to assess if these ties are nearing a failure limit state, identify potential failure modes and develop methods for predicting when they are likely to fail.

The Dwight David Eisenhower Transportation Fellowship Program has awarded more than $50 million in graduate research fellowships over the last four decades to the brightest minds in the transportation industry. From this investment, fellows have pushed for innovative change in multimodal areas from highway infrastructure to aviation to maritime, making the industry more effective and efficient.

Big Kansas Road Trip to be held

Hundreds of people from all over the state and beyond will explore Ellsworth and Lincoln counties plus the community of Lucas in Russell County on May 2-5 as part of the sixth Big Kansas Road Trip.

A project of the non-profit Kansas Sampler Foundation, the purpose of the event is to provide the public with first-hand experiences in rural communities and to give these cities a chance to showcase who they are and what they have.

In Ellsworth County, a sampling of events includes cattle branding, missile silo tours, Czech dancing, Big Band music and swing dancing, frontier army re-enactments, folk music jamming and pie, a ranger chat about petroglyphs plus attractions like Mushroom Rock State Park, Faris Caves, local museums, Kansas Originals, and the World's Largest Czech Egg.

In Lincoln County, there will be Danish pancakes served in Denmark, post rock quarry demonstrations, pie on the porch, owl hikes, dark sky

Beautifying Lincoln

A new perspective on inflation

In 1966 the national average price of a man's haircut was $1.95, equal to $19.03 in today's currency). For women it was $2.16, equal to $20.79 in today's currency). In the city's economies a man can expect $30 for a haircut while women might pay more than $50, depending on the experience and education of the stylist. (We are extremely lucky in Lincoln!)

The national average price for most grocery staples in the 1960's was less than a dollar. Five pounds of flour was $.61; a dozen eggs cost $.66 cents; a pound of ground beef was $.55 cents and a box of generic cornflakes was $.32. In today's dollar, the cost of each item is $5.95, $6.44, $5.37 and $3.12 respectively. Except for an inflated cost of eggs since 2020, these prices are in line with today's.

LINCOLN - PAST, PRESENT & FUTURE

by Cindy Entriken

Although I know of several area men who were in the military during the Vietnam War era, I've never heard any of their stories. Military personnel who returned to the states also may not have wanted to speak about their experiences.

But now Lincoln area veterans of the Vietnam War era will have an opportunity to tell their stories and be recorded courtesy of a grant from Humanities Kansas to the Lincoln County Historical Society.

After I learned about the grant and the goal of recording veterans' stories I began to wonder about past recordings of U. S. military personnel. Specifically I wondered about the earliest recordings? What were they and how long ago had they been made?

I found some fascinating recordings, both audio and video, that I want to share with you. If you want to see and/or hear the recording, click on the link I've provided or go to your computer and type in the web address which I have provided for you.

Broadly speaking Americans have gone to war twelve times since the founding of this country. (I'm counting the Iraq and the Afghanistan wars as two wars, not breaking them down further into the Persian Gulf War, and various Operation fill-in-the-blank wars.

Photographs, audio and video recordings of America's veterans aren't new. Obviously there are no audio or video recordings for veterans of the Revolutionary War, but here's the web address to see photos of six men who fought in the American Revolution: www.warhistory-online.com/instant-articles/the-last-men.html.

The first moving picture recording I found was of the funeral of Hiram Cronk, the last surviving veteran of the War of 1812. Cronk died in 1905 in New York state. He had a state funeral in New York City where thousands of residents cheered and watched the procession. Go to www.loc.gov/item/00694398/ to see a video of Cronk's funeral or google Hiram Cronk funeral.

More than one audio recording of Civil War veterans exist. I was fascinated by one, an elderly man talking about his experiences as a Confederate soldier. The link doesn't work so you'll have to type in the title: Man Born in 1846 Talks About the 1860s and Fighting in the Civil War. To find see or hear other recordings of Civil War veterans google the phrase American Civil War Veterans recordings.

Most of us are familiar with veterans' recordings from WWI and II. I have a recording of my great aunt, Ila Armsbury Herman, made around 1992, where Ila spoke to a women's group and talked about her experiences as an Army nurse during WWII. If you'd like to hear that recording, click on this link: <https://cindyentricken.com/2020/10/ilas-war-audio-recording-with-photographs-and-news-stories/> or google the phrase Ila Armsbury WWII recording.

If you're from Lincoln County, even if you no longer live in the county, and you're a U. S. veteran from the Vietnam War era, 1964 - 1975, and you'd like to participate in this project, call 785-524-9997 or contact Bud DeArvil at: bud.dearvil@gmail.com

I, for one, would love to hear your story.

Motorcycle safety is everyone's concern

As the weather gets warmer, motorists can expect an increase in motorcycle traffic. With May being Motorcycle Safety Awareness Month, the Kansas Department of Transportation and The Drive To Zero Coalition emphasize that cooperation from all road users will help reduce the number of fatalities and injuries on the state's highways.

Preliminary 2023 Kansas crash data show there were 41 fatalities in 40 fatal crashes involving motorcycles. This represents a downward trend in motorcycle deaths in the state since 2020 when 65 people died in 62 fatal crashes, according to Gary Herman, KDOT Behavioral Safety Manager.

"But the goal is to avoid crashes altogether," Herman said. "This requires both vehicle drivers and motorcyclists to pay close attention to the road and their surroundings while following traffic laws."

The Motorcycle Safety Awareness Month campaign aims to increase awareness and promote safety measures for motorcyclists and motorists alike. KDOT and The DTZ Coalition emphasize the importance of being attentive and alert to the presence of motorcycles on city, urban and rural streets and highways.

Tips for drivers:

- Yield to motorcyclists especially while turning at intersections.
- Check all mirrors and blind spots for motorcycles before changing lanes or merging with traffic.
- Allow more follow distance when behind a motorcycle.
- Allow motorcycles the full width of a lane at all times.

Tips for motorcyclists:

- Wear personal protective gear and a DOT-compliant helmet. High visibility gear will help you be seen.
- Take a motorcycle safety course and keep your bike well maintained.
- Don't ride in the blind spots of motor vehicles.
- Drive and ride defensively.

"Judgement for all drivers is compromised if driving impaired, and speeding increases chances of fatal crashes," Herman said. "But when these crashes involve a motorcyclist, the consequences can be even worse. Motorcyclists don't have seat belts, air bags or the inside of a vehicle to cushion the blow"

For more information on motorcycle safety for motorcyclists and drivers, visit <https://www.trafficsafetymarketing.gov/safety-topics/motorcycle-safety>.

JR. SUNFLOWER 4H CLUB

By Anna Koster

Wayne Elder called the April 21st 4-H meeting to order. Titus Bell led the club in saying the Flag Salute and 4-H Pledge. There were 21 members, 3 leaders, and 1 tag-a-long. The roll call question was, "What is your favorite animal?" Parliamentarian, Alison Rosebrook, had the club get into four teams to answer ten questions about some of the general things in a meeting.

Rachel Bell gave the leaders report and she announced that April 27th is small animal weigh-in from 10:00 to noon at the Sylvan Fair Grounds. Then from 12:30 to 1:30 pm at the Sylvan Sale Barn is YQCA, Youth for the Quality Care of Animals, training. It is highly recommended that all 4-Her's taking animals to the county fair or state competitions do this training. May 1st is the deadline to add or change projects for the fair and it is also the due date for senior scholarships. The Janice Rehmeier Tucker Memorial Scholarship Fund has opened up the funding to include youth going to a state or regional event, not just camp. Contact the extension office if you are going to an event that would qualify.

The Fair Board report was about the Ranch Rodeo on April 20th and memorial benches for Kent Rehmeier. The 4-H Council report was also given by Rachel Bell and she announced that the Osborne/Downs 4-H clubs are working on a district Fashion Revue Workshop. Blair Todd will be doing a livestock showmanship clinic at the end of May. More information on that will be available later. Super Sitter Workshop, for any youth interested in babysitting, and STEM Adventure Lab will be at Sylvan Grove on June 18th.

Project talks for this month were given by Wayne Elder and he talked about his horse. The song leaders, Collin and Marissa Rosebrook, led the club in singing Head, Shoulders, Knees, and Toes. The recreation leaders, August Buttenhoff and Austin Rosebrook, told the club that we are going to do a 3-legged race. Next meeting will be on May 19th at the Rosebrook's Farm Shed at 5:30. Day on the farm

This past week I got to help with Pottawatomie County Farm Bureau’s Day on the Farm. Most of the schools in the county send their fourth-grade classes, and presenting at it is one of the highlights of my year. This year I got to talk about sheep, and I loved every minute of the day.

I was one of many volunteers including farmers, ranchers, law enforcement officers, extension agents, soil conservation representatives and many others who took time out of their day to share their slice of the agriculture pie with the students.

The kids had a million questions, and they were eager to pet the sheep. It seemed like we never got completely through the presentation before the horn sounded and it was time for them to move. I could hear a similar buzz from the other stations nearby.

Pottawatomie County has been putting its Day on the Farm on for more than 20 years, and I have had the honor of helping every year. This year the weather was perfect, but we have had years with wind, rain and less than warm temperatures. Even those years were great events and worth every minute of my time.

I also know what we do in Pottawatomie County is not unique. Many counties do similar events and others spend time going to classrooms to share their knowledge and passion for agriculture with students.

I start each session by asking the classes how many live on a farm. I usually get one, two or three. Then I ask how many have grandparents, aunts or uncles who farm or ranch. I usually get a few more hands but often we are only up to about half or less of the class. I consider Pottawatomie County a rural county and the first few years the numbers surprised me.

My little, informal survey highlights why we host these events and why we take the time to go to classrooms. Each generation gets farther and farther away from the farm and have less and less idea of how their food is raised. Education is the key to helping our future consumers understand the time and dedication we all put into growing the food on their table.

The time we spend hosting events like Day on the Farm or teaching in classrooms is one of the things of which I am most proud. It is also something that we cannot rest on our laurels, and I am sure we are not. Ag education will continue to be one of the most important parts of what our county Farm Bureaus do.

I am already penciling the Wednesday closest to Earth Day on my calendar for next year. It is an event I do not want to miss. I would also encourage each of you to contact your county Farm Bureau and volunteer to help with ag education, I promise it will be the highlight of your year.

PRAIRIE DOC - JILL KRUSE, DO
Based on Science, Built on Trust

As we approach the end of our 22nd season, I would like to thank our audience for trusting us to bring them health information that is current and accurate. There are many doctors out there who cannot make the same claims as the Prairie Doc’s and I would like to take this opportunity to help sort out those charlatans and quacks from trusted sources of health information.

While tasty and refreshing, I would not trust Dr. Pepper for medical advice. Nor would I trust Dr. Evil from Austin Powers, despite his claims that he went to “four years of Evil Medical School”. I like to read Dr. Seuss’ books, but I would not let him take a look. While I think he is a dear, I would not let him peek in my ear. He is not the doctor that I want to see if I needed an appendectomy.

While you can trust Doc Martin and his shoes to help you look cool, I am certain he has no medical training. Doc Brown from Back to the Future is another doctor I’m not sure I would listen to. Beside the fact that he likely has a PhD rather than an MD/DO degree, can you really trust someone who would make a time machine out of a Delorian?

“The Doctor” from Doctor Who, is someone whom his companions trust with their life. Unfortunately a sonic screwdriver will not replace a stethoscope for making a medical diagnosis. The Doctor has also been known to put those companions in grave danger from Darleks and Cybermen. Although Dr. Steven Strange from the Marvel Universe is a legitimate doctor by training, I suspect he allowed his license and board certification to lapse when he became an Avenger. Thus he would not be my first choice for current medical advice or treatment. Similarly, I would not let Doc Octo, a known villain from the Spider-Man series, use any of his mechanical arms examine me.

Dr. Benjamin Franklin Pierce, aka “Hawkeye”, from M.A.S.H. was an excellent surgeon, but his treatments and techniques are decades out of date. We have come a long way in surgery and anesthesia since the Korean War. I would also trust Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman, but only if I was living back in the 1800’s on the prairie. The current Prairie Docs have much more training and knowledge than she had access to at the time.

As you can see, there are many doctors out there. However, when looking for medical advice, you need not only someone you can trust, but also someone who has the training to give you the most current and up to date advice. The Prairie Docs strive to answer your medical questions each week with such information. So tune in and ask anything. We are here to help you stay healthy out there, with health information that is based on science and built on over twenty years of trust.

Jill Kruse, D.O. is part of The Prairie Doc® team of physicians and currently practices as a hospitalist in Brookings, South Dakota. Follow The Prairie Doc® at www.prairiedoc.org and on Facebook and Instagram featuring On Call with the Prairie Doc®, a medical Q&A show providing health information based on science, built on trust, streaming live on Facebook most Thursdays at 7 p.m. central.

Post Rock Extension District - By Blaire Todd
K-STATE RESEARCH AND EXTENSION-POST ROCK DISTRICT LIVESTOCK PRODUCTION AGENT

The Basics of Mineral Nutrition

Most beef cattle producers recognize that mineral nutrition is important. However, a mineral program is only one component of an operation’s nutrition and management plan. An exceptional mineral program will not compensate for deficiencies in energy, protein, or management according to Kansas State Extension Beef Systems Specialist, Justin Waggoner. Additionally, the classical signs associated with clinical deficiency of a particular mineral (wasting, hair loss, discoloration of hair coat, diarrhea, bone abnormalities, etc.) are not often or are rarely observed in production settings. The production and economic losses attributed to mineral nutrition in many situations are the result of sub-clinical deficiencies, toxicities and antagonisms between minerals which are often less obvious (reduced immune function, vaccine response, and sub-optimal fertility).

Many producers erroneously assume that the science of mineral nutrition is relatively complete. However, mineral nutrition is complicated, and our knowledge of mineral nutrition is relatively incomplete. There are 17 minerals required in the diets of beef cattle. However, no requirements have been established for several minerals that are considered essential (Chlorine, Chromium, Molybdenum, and Nickel). Minerals may be broken down into two categories. 1. The macrominerals whose requirements are expressed as a percent of the total diet (calcium, phosphorous, magnesium, potassium, sodium, chlorine, and sulfur). 2. The microminerals or trace minerals (required in trace amounts) whose requirements are expressed as parts per million (ppm) or milligrams per kilogram of dry matter consumed (chromium, cobalt, copper, iodine, iron, manganese, molybdenum, nickel, selenium, and zinc).

Mineral status of an animal is a function of the total diet (both water and feed) and stored mineral reserves within the body. Water may be a substantial source of mineral; however, the variation in water consumption makes estimating the contribution of mineral from water sources difficult. Mineral content of forages is influenced by several factors including plant species, soil, maturity, and growing conditions. These factors, and others not mentioned, make estimating the dietary mineral content of grazing cattle challenging. Most commercial mineral supplements are formulated to meet or exceed the requirements for a given stage of production. This ensures that deficiencies are unlikely but providing supra-optimal levels of minerals may be unnecessary unless specific production problems exist. A mineral program does not have to be complex or expensive to be successful. Minerals are an important component of beef cattle nutrition that should not be over-looked as sub-clinical deficiencies of minerals likely contribute to more production and economic losses than we realize.

SPICE UP YOUR LIFE - LINDSAY YOUNG

‘Lei’ the foundation for a delicious grilled chicken

Honey Garlic Chicken

- Ingredients
- 4 tablespoons vegetable oil, divided
 - 1 large bell pepper, diced (any color)
 - 1/2 small yellow onion, diced
 - 6 to 8 boneless, skinless chicken thighs, sliced into one-inch strips
 - 2 tablespoons cornstarch
 - 1/2 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 - 1 tablespoon butter
 - 8 to 10 cloves garlic, minced
 - 1/3 cup honey
 - 1/3 cup chicken or vegetable stock
 - 1 tablespoon rice wine vinegar
 - 1 tablespoon soy sauce
 - Cooked rice, for serving
 - 1 tablespoon sesame seeds, toasted (optional)
 - 1 teaspoon red chili flakes (optional)

Directions

Heat two tablespoons of oil in a large skillet over medium heat. Add the bell pepper and onions, and saute until they are cooked through.

Remove the peppers and onions from the skillet and place them in a bowl to the side.

While the vegetables cook, prepare the chicken thighs. Mix the cornstarch, salt and pepper in a large mixing bowl, and then add the chicken thighs, tossing until the cornstarch mixture is well distributed.

When the veggies are done, add the other two tablespoons of oil to the pan and turn the heat to medium-high. Add the chicken to the skillet, and saute until it is browned on all sides and fully cooked through (165 degrees internal temperature).

Turn the heat back to medium and prepare the sauce.

In a small bowl, whisk together the honey, chicken stock, rice wine vinegar and soy sauce.

Next, toss the butter and garlic into the skillet, stirring to melt the butter and saute the garlic. Once the garlic is lightly browned and fragrant, stir in the sauce and the peppers and onions. Let the sauce come to a low boil and then simmer for several minutes until the sauce reduces.

Serve over rice and sprinkled with sesame seeds and chili flakes.

This had a good savory sweetness that we really enjoyed. If you leave out the chili flakes, it has no spice whatsoever and should be a good crowd pleaser.

I made my white rice with chicken stock instead of water to add a little more flavor, and I even threw in both regular and black sesame seeds and sliced green onions to try to make it look fancy.

I was so glad this wasn’t a horrible sequel to my honey lime chicken experiment. I’m sure I’ll have a major kitchen fail again sometime in the future, but luckily, this wasn’t the time.

Securities bills designed to protect vulnerable Kansans
signed into law

Kansas Insurance Commissioner Vicki Schmidt, today, announced that two securities bills introduced by the Kansas Department of Insurance have been signed into law. The bills are designed to protect vulnerable Kansans from financial exploitation and strengthen the Department’s ability to penalize bad actors.

HB 2562, the Protect Vulnerable Adults from Financial Exploitation Act, is based on a model law from the North American Securities Administrators Association (NASAA) and has been adopted in some form in 41 other states. The new law will give agents, broker-dealers, investment advisers and representatives the ability to pause transactions for senior and dependent adults when fraud is suspected to help ensure the investment is legitimate. The Department will also be notified to investigate.

SB 405 allows the Department to pursue penalties against the non-registered control persons of violators of the Kansas Uniform Securities Act. This eliminates a loophole and strengthens protections for Kansans.
