House fire takes six lives

By Jyll Phillips, Lincoln-Sentinel

A house fire in Lincoln claimed the lives of two women and four dogs Thursday, April 23. According to a press release from the Lincoln County Sheriff's Office, dispatch received several calls to 9-1-1 reporting a structural fire in the 300 block of East Yauger in Lincoln. City and Rural Fire Departments responded as well as the Lincoln County Rescue Squad and Lincoln County EMS. Neighboring counties including Mitchell and Ottawa were also called upon to help.

Due to high winds and the heat produced by the structure fire, surrounding neighbors were evacuated.

The property was destroyed and multiple neighboring properties sustained extensive damage as the fire progressed quickly despite the tremendous efforts made by the fire departments.

During the investigation, the bodies of two women were found, aged 82 and 63, who both lived at the property. Four dogs were also discovered deceased. The family has been notified. The women have not yet been publicly identified.

The investigation into the fire is in process and is being overseen by the Kansas State Fire Marshal's Office.

USD 298 Lincoln Studies Future of Elementary Facilities

Lincoln Elementary School, the hub of primary education in USD 298, is at a critical crossroads. After a year of study and deliberation by a steering committee, the Board of Education is seeking community input on how to address significant facility deterioration that has moved beyond the scope of routine maintenance.

The Challenges: Beyond Simple Repairs

The aging facility faces several urgent structural concerns, most notably a unique and persistent water issue. Investigations have revealed a natural spring beneath the building, causing constant flooding and foundation concerns, plaguing the school for years.

In addition to the water intrusion, the building's exterior is deteriorating and plumbing and electrical systems are in critical need of replacement.

Exploring Two Primary Options

The cost of these essential repairs significantly exceeds the district's annual operating budget, requiring a bond to finance a long-term solution. The Board is currently weighing two primary options:

- Option 1 - Make Repairs to the Existing Elementary School

Critical Infrastructure Repairs -

- address underground spring infiltration and basement/foundation issues
- address antiquated electrical systems and sewer pipe corrosion and collapse in and under the building which will require significant demolition of concrete, bathroom fixtures, flooring, and walls
- repair deteriorated building exterior

Additional Needs and/or Enhancements to Consider-

- heavy remodeling to remove walls to make classrooms larger and/or more functional for modern instructional and learning needs, which will then require construction of 3 additional classrooms
- remodeling required to relocate the district office to the elementary school
- remodeling to create a secure main entrance
- Option 2 - Constructing a new elementary addition onto the existing high school

This plan would condense staff, utilize only one kitchen, and schedule the lunchroom and other common spaces for separate use from younger versus older students.

Features of New Construction

- elementary classrooms and restrooms
- a secure main entrance
- a gym for elementary PE and recess with after school use by all age groups

Other Additions to Consider

- space to relocate district office to preK-12 complex

A Call for Community Voices

"The future of our schools is a community decision," Superintendent Nikki Flinn stated. "We want our stakeholders to see these challenges firsthand, understand the benefits and drawbacks of all options and associated costs, and help us decide the best path forward for our students and taxpayers."

The district is launching a multi-phase engagement plan, including:

- Community Meetings: Detailed presentations and discussion on costs and options.
- Facility Tours: First-hand views of the facility needs.

From South Korea to Small-Town Kansas

By Alexa Romesburg, For the Lincoln-Sentinel

An evening in the Polly family household is much the way one might expect if you have ever met them. A little chaotic with multiple children in various stages of adolescence all going their separate and individual ways. One child is headed off to play practice. Another child is taking Tiny

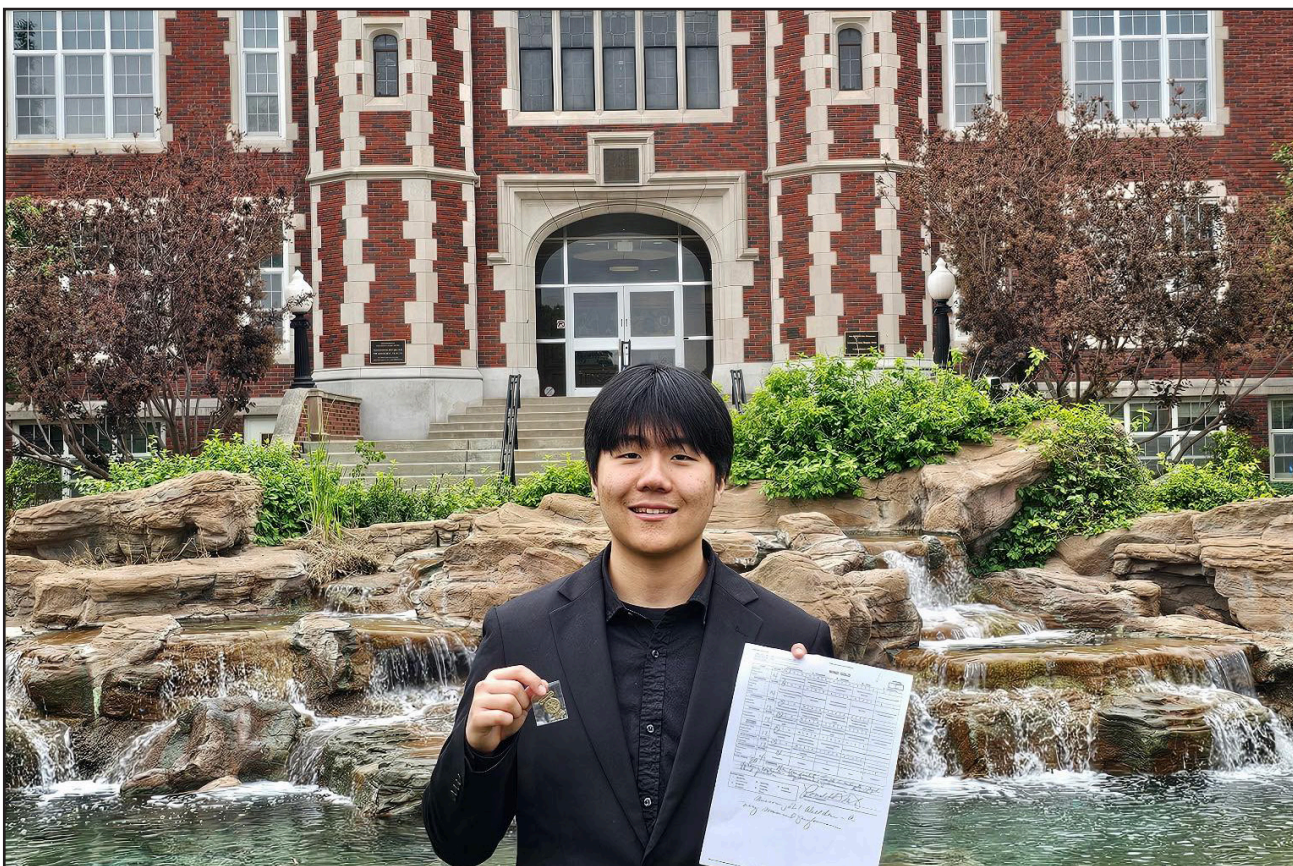

(the truly tiny family dog) outside, while yet a third is seated attentively on a regal looking couch in the open living room conducting an interview on his latest scholastic and extracurricular achievements. It's a warm and welcoming atmosphere. The air is filled with energy, laughter, and lots of friendly banter back and forth. You would never know they are not an ordinary family. One of their children is an extraordinary exchange student from South Korea. His name is, Sion Na.

The Polly family have dubbed Sion with the anglicized name of, Shawn. Sion (or Shawn, if you prefer), has a lot to be proud of. In his brief time in Lincoln, Kansas he has experienced two historical achievements.

The first was in November of last year, when he and the rest of his Lincoln Leopards football team made a record-breaking bid for the state championship. For an exchange student from South Korea, small town, American football is more than another culture in a foreign country. It's another world. The exhilarating run

Girls just want to have fun... and carry the ball

According to an official social media post by the Kansas State High Schools Activities Association (KSHSAA) on Thursday, April 23, girls flag football is now a sanctioned sport on the prep level in the Sunflower State. Starting in the 2026-27 school year, Kansas girls will compete for a KSHSAA state championship in flag football.

The KSHSAA Board of Directors voted, 61-1, to make girls flag football an officially sanctioned sport, becoming the 18th state to do so. Starting with the 2026-27 school year, the KSHSAA will begin having member schools compete for a state championship.

"This is a great day for the KSHSAA as our leadership board took decisive action by approving the expansion of program offerings to include girls flag football," KSHSAA executive director Bill Faflick said in a statement. "We appreciate the leadership of the Board of Directors, who faithfully serve and reflect the desires of membership in these important decisions. The KSHSAA also appreciates the support of the Kansas City Chiefs and other stakeholders who helped bring girls flag football to Kansas."

Sideburns named for Union General

Cash Grain

Sideburns have been found on the faces of several famous figures, from Alexander the Great to Charles Darwin, but it wasn't until the U.S. Civil War (1861-1865) that the term "sideburns" came into being, thanks to a particularly hirsute Union general. Ambrose Burnside wasn't much of a general: At the Battle of Antietam, his ineffective command meant his soldiers struggled to take a stone bridge (now called Burnside Bridge) and turned what could've been a Union victory into a draw. At Fredericksburg, things went from bad to worse, as Burnside led several failed assaults against Robert E. Lee's forces. But what Burnside might've lacked in military acumen, he made up for with his luxurious facial hair, which connected his side-whiskers to his mustache (his chin remained clean-shaven). After the war, many men copied the general's look, and these facial facsimiles were called "burnsides." Over the years, the term eventually flipped into its modern spelling.

Lincoln High School presents Annie, Jr.

The talented students at Lincoln High School performed Annie, Jr. in performances Saturday evening, April 25 and Sunday afternoon, April 26. Every year the high school musical is an important and well-loved event within the community, and this year was no exception. Based on the popular comic strip and adapted from the Tony Award-winning Best Musical, with a beloved book and score by Tony Award winners, Thomas Meehan, Charles Strouse and Martin Charnin, Annie Jr. features everyone's favorite little redhead in her very first adventure.

With equal measures of pluck and positivity, little orphan Annie charms everyone's hearts despite a next-to-nothing start in 1930s New York City. Annie is determined to find the parents who abandoned her years ago on the doorstep of an orphanage run by the cruel Miss Hannigan. Annie eventually foils Miss Hannigan's evil machinations, finding a new home and family in billionaire Oliver Warbucks, his personal secretary, Grace Farrell, and a lovable mutt named Sandy.

As the story goes, it is 3 A.M. on a chilly morning in early December 1933. Thinking about her parents inspires Annie to run away from the orphanage to search for them. She packs a bag and is ready to leave when she is discovered by Miss Hannigan, the villainous director of the orphanage. Miss Hannigan makes all the orphans get up to scrub floors and strip the beds to "pay" for Annie's misbehavior. Their complaint that it is four o'clock in the morning fall on deaf ears so as they clean, the orphans complain. Yes, it's a hard-knock life for these youngsters.

The adventures and misadventures continue from that point as Annie attempts to locate her parents, Warbucks wants to adopt her and she meets President Roosevelt!

Directed by Miranda Weidenhaft and Traci Bates, the cast, in order of appearance, included Aniston Madsen as Molly; Laina Larson as Kate; Tennyson Donley as Tessie; Chloe Helus as Pepper; Olivia Budreau as July; Juliette Good as Duffy; Nayalie Polly as Annie; Kaylee Obermueller as Miss Hannigan; Matthew Schale as Bundles McCloskey; Alison Rosebrook as Apple Seller; Hadley Wiebke as Dogcatcher; Conner Weber as Sandy; Camden Weber as Officer Ward; Emily Romesburg as Grace Farrell; Matthew Schale as Drake; Tennyson Donley as Cecille; Juliette Good as Annette; Hadley Wiebke as Mrs. Greer; Chloe Helus as Mrs. Pugh; Laina Larson, Camden Weber and Noah Blackwood as Servants; Clay

Bates as Oliver Warbucks; Conner Weber as Chauffeur; Alison Rosebrook as Usherette; Jahdiel Miller as Rooster; Lily Behrens as Lily; Conner Weber as Bert Healy; Camden Weber as Sound Effects Man; Noah Blackwood as President Roosevelt; Conner Weber as Louis Howe; Laina Larson as Star-to-be; Tennyson Donley, Chloe Helus, Juliette Good, Hadley Wiebke and Noah Blackwood as New Yorkers. Taking care of business behind the curtain was the Stage Crew of Keynan Flinn and Titus Wolf; Lighting Technician Kadin Schneider; Prop Design by Aprilia Suiter assisted by Mr. Sebesta and Set Design by Aprilia Suiter assisted by Mrs. Heller. Choreography and Costume Design by the Cast.

"We had a large cast this year, which was fun," Bates said. "They performed a musical instead of a play for the first time in two years, which meant that none of the cast had ever experienced a musical. They were apprehensive at first, but by the final performance, they had embraced their roles. One cast member told me the songs kept getting stuck in her head. I think they really had fun with it. I know we did! There's a lot of hidden talent in our youth, and this brought some of that talent into the limelight."

Sylvan Grove to Celebrate 150 Years with Day of History, Community, and Tradition

Residents of Sylvan Grove and surrounding communities are invited to take part in a once-in-a-generation celebration as the town marks its 150th anniversary on Saturday, May 23, 2026. Centered around the theme "Rooted in Our History... Reaching to Our Future," the event promises a full day of activities honoring the town's rich past while celebrating the spirit of its future.

The festivities will begin at 10:00 a.m. with a community parade through town. Throughout the day, visitors can enjoy a wide variety of attractions, including food and vendor booths, children's games and activities, a youth watermelon seed spitting contest, a beard contest, and a community scavenger hunt. A tractor and classic car display will also highlight the region's agricultural heritage, while local museums and historical sites will host open houses, exhibits, and live demonstrations.

A special highlight of the celebration will be the bank robbery reenactment, a tradition that has been performed in past milestone years, 50 and 25 years ago, and will once again bring local history to life for attendees. The reenactment is based on a dramatic real-life event that unfolded on November 12, 1894, when three-armed men rode into Sylvan Grove intending to rob the town's bank. While the robbery nearly succeeded, it was ultimately thwarted thanks to the quick actions of a young bank teller and the use of a Sharps rifle. The story has since become one of the most well-known episodes in the community's history.

Historical records later linked one of the robbers, Anthony McKee, to a group believed to have been involved in a string of crimes across the region. Despite investigations and widespread speculation, the case was never fully solved, adding to the enduring intrigue of the event. Over time, the story of the attempted robbery, and the people connected to it has become part of the folklore that shapes Sylvan Grove's identity.

In addition to historical programming, the celebration will also include a school alumni open house, offering former students an opportunity to reconnect and reflect on shared memories. The day will conclude with a live band and community dance, bringing residents and visitors together in a festive close to the milestone event.

Organizers hope the sesquicentennial celebration will not only honor the town's deep historical roots but also strengthen community bonds and inspire future generations. With activities designed for all ages and interests, the event is expected to draw attendees from across the region.

The First Presbyterian Church of Sylvan Grove will celebrate its 150th Anniversary, Sunday, May 24, at 11:00 A.M. This will be a celebration/worship service followed by a catered meal, compliments of the church. We are putting together a 150th Anniversary Book that can be purchased for $5.00. Preorders were requested, but a few extra can be picked up at the celebration. If you would like to attend the catered meal, please call or text (785) 658-5339 by May 8th.

Also on Saturday, May 23rd, Sylvan Grove is celebrating its 150th with a parade at 10:00 A.M. followed by many activities and food vendors throughout the day.

COMMISSION MEETING MINUTES

April 13, 2026
The Lincoln County Board of Commissioners met in the courthouse commission meeting room on Monday, April 13, 2026. Chairman Debora Smith called the meeting to order at 8:30 a.m. with Vice-Chairman Ken Meitler and Member Leon Hart present. County Clerk Dawn Harlow was in attendance as recording secretary.

Others present for portions of the meeting: Adam Robertson, Mary Ann Stertz, Jesse Knight, Brett Wilkinson, Brandon Sauers, Dustin Florence, and Luke Sanders.

Correspondence: midmonth accounts payable.

Administrator Adam Robertson reviewed Public Works equipment and vehicle usage, and followed up with the Ottawa County Clerk regarding the discussion at the area commission meeting about considering a shared county counselor with smaller counties.

County Treasurer Mary Ann Stertz provided the 1st quarter 2026 Treasurer Quarterly Interest Earned on Idle Funds report for the board's review.

Emergency Manager Jesse Knight presented the Lincoln County Disaster Recovery Plan for the board's approval and discussed repeater board vacancies. Debora

Smith moved to appoint Jerome Curtis to fill the vacant seat on the repeater board with a term that will expire February 28, 2028, seconded by Ken Meitler. Motion carried.

Debora Smith moved to approve Resolution 2026-14, adopting the Lincoln County Disaster Recovery Plan, seconded by Leon Hart. Motion carried.

Director of Public Works Brandon Sauers provided an update on department activities. Brett Wilkenson, Kirkham Micheal, provided the estimates received to perform geotechnical services for OS 65. Debora Smith moved to approve an agreement with PEC to complete the geotech work for off-system bridge 65, seconded by Leon Hart. Motion carried.

Wilkenson provided an update on the construction/demolition pit, including going out for bids to build the new pit and tentatively scheduling the bid opening for mid-May. Wilkenson provided options for coring the Westfall Rd to assess the condition of the existing road base. After discussion, Debora Smith moved to enter into an agreement with Kirkham Michaels to complete the coring study of the Westfall asphalt road, with two cores per mile, for a total cost of $10,500, seconded by Ken Meitler. Motion carried.

Sheriff Dustin Florence, with Undersheriff Luke Sanders, updated the board on department activities.

The group discussed how to proceed, as the state legislation approving the county to place a sales tax issue on the ballot had not been passed this calendar year. The county has statutory authority to place a sales tax question for health services without legislative approval. The board discussed whether they could assess a sales tax for health services, to fund all health budgets that currently receive a levy, and then shift the levy to cover a rental payment to the Public Building Commission, to cover bond costs if the PBC initiated a bond to build the law enforcement center and pay for rehabilitation on the courthouse.

Debora Smith moved to approve the minutes of the April 6, 2026, meeting, seconded by Leon Hart. Motion carried.

Debora Smith moved to approve midmonth accounts payable in the amount of $96,234.64, seconded by Ken Meitler. Motion carried.

The chairman adjourned the meeting at 12:25 p.m. The next meeting will be in the courthouse commission meeting room at 8:30 a.m. on Monday, April 20, 2026.

NEWS BRIEF

America's 250th: Connecting a Nation

America turns 250 soon — how does Salina connect to the anniversary? America's 250th is a milestone built from millions of stories. Some come from the founding era, but many more were shaped in towns, cities, and communities far from the original thirteen colonies. Our nation's history is richer and more complex because of the people who lived, worked, dreamed, and struggled in places just like Salina.

The Smoky Hill Museum celebrates this anniversary by shining a light on the role museums play in preserving local stories in a new exhibit, America's 250: Connecting a Nation. This exhibit invites visitors to explore how museums have grown, adapted and continue to connect us to our past. The exhibition will be on view in the Center Gallery from April 24 through October 10, 2026.

Every town has contributed to the American story through its people, industries, struggles, and triumphs. For communities like ours, the 250th anniversary is a reminder that national history is built from local experiences. By preserving these moments, museums ensure that the voices of everyday Kansans stand alongside the better-known chapters of our nation's past.

Museums have changed dramatically over the years, evolving from simple collections to vibrant community spaces that protect the past and help us understand our place in it. They ensure that in another 250 years, people will remember not only America's beginnings, but the everyday lives and deep roots that shaped our shared history.

For communities like ours, the 250th anniversary is also a reminder that national history is built from local experiences. Every town has contributed to the American story through its people, industries, struggles, and special thanks to our generous local sponsor Nex-Tech. The Smoky Hill Museum is a nationally accredited history museum in the heart of downtown Salina, Kansas.

Insight - Kansas Farm Bureau - opinion Opening gates

Greg Doering
Kansas Farm Bureau

Like many people who grew up in rural Kansas, opening gates was the first job I had on my grandparents' ranch. I obtained my title of "gate getter" early, but it took some time before I was able to open all the gates on the ranch and even longer to recognize I was part of an informal apprenticeship.

The more substantial gates around the corral made out of scrap iron and hung on actual hinges were the easiest to unlatch and swing open. At some of the far-flung pastures, however, entrances were guarded by flimsy wire gates, which are really just a removable section of barbed wire pulled taut with a cheater bar and secured with a loop of wire.

Strength certainly helped in opening and closing wire gates, but there also was a skill to getting your grip on the lever and flipping the loop to release or close the gate. Eventually I grew enough to have the strength and skill to open all the gates.

New challenges replaced the gates once they became easy to open. There were instructions on how to operate a wire stretcher, weld a uniform bead and operate all manner of machinery.

The only connection between all these jobs is that I started with no experience, but I was lucky enough to have grandparents who were willing to teach me and patient enough to allow me to make mistakes along the way and learn there were no shortcuts for doing any of the jobs the right way.

We never would have described the progression from gate opener to running the hay baler as an apprenticeship, but all it lacked was classroom instruction. And maybe some structure at times.

Those small issues aside, my time as a ranch hand was very similar to an apprenticeship where I assumed more responsibility and increased wages through hands-on training provided by my grandparents.

While they may not have always been labeled as such, apprenticeships are merely a formal way to do what agriculture and small businesses have always done well — pass knowledge from one generation to the next.

Kansas Farm Bureau's Rural Kansas Apprenticeship Program (RKAP) was created to provide a structured path for the long-standing practice of pairing those just starting out with experienced professionals.

Apprentices gain skills, but they also gain other strengths along the way like judgment and confidence while employers can offer more than just a job — they have a chance to help someone craft a career in rural Kansas.

With this being National Apprenticeship Week, it's a good time to recognize the success of RKAP since it was founded in late 2022 with a goal of building a skilled and loyal workforce in rural Kansas. As the first apprenticeship focused on rural communities and businesses, RKAP has gained traction with employers and apprentices.

But it's still opening gates. The program is learning on the job alongside the apprentices and employers. In the past year, RKAP has received a nearly $400,000 grant from the Patterson Family Foundation to help spread the word about apprenticeships and has strengthened Kansas Farm Bureau's collaboration with Farm Bureau Financial Services agents through a sales associate apprenticeship.

This appreciation is a reminder that we all learn by doing, whether it's opening gates to pastures or opening gates to improve the rural workforce in Kansas. Learn more at www.kfb.org/RKAP.

"Insight" is a weekly column published by Kansas Farm Bureau, the state's largest farm organization whose mission is to strengthen agriculture and the lives of Kansans through advocacy, education and service.

My daughter went to rehab today. She left her red Gatorade behind.

I don't think she meant to leave it. She had already started drinking it. She set it down on the couch with her bags and belongings that she had packed in preparation for her time in rehab. I think her boyfriend must have given it to her when they said goodbye, because we don't have any Gatorade in our house. I meant to remind her to pick it up, and take it with her. But I got distracted saying goodbye, and packing her lunch, and I simply forgot. So did she. It's funny how it's always the smallest of things you both forget and remember in the midst of any major life change or crisis.

We said goodbye today. And I suspect deep down we both know things will never be the same again. When she comes out of rehab, she will be 18. Life begins anew for both of us in very different ways. She has independence. And I have freedom from the responsibility of her choices as a juvenile. In a certain way, we both get to reclaim our individual identities and lives. It is amazing how circumstances and traumatic events can, at once, shape a relationship and forge a bond built on all the wrong things. When two people cling to each other out of fear, survival, or worse still - hurt and anger, the worst of their natures will inevitably clash. My daughter and I have experienced exactly that over the past 18 years. Our whole relationship and her whole childhood have been both framed by and fraught with trauma. Which is not really a shocking thing considering the statistical correlation between addiction and trauma. I wrote a feature story last week heavily focused on statistics related to addiction in our country. The number of people with trauma (childhood or otherwise) or mental health issues seeking relief from pain through substance use is estimated to be at over 48 million. My daughter falls squarely into that number.

I don't know how to reconcile with the red Gatorade she left behind. It's almost like an emblem of unfinished moments; and all the unsaid things she left behind as well. There are so many things we never got to do, never knew how to say. So many things. We meant to do them. We meant to say them. But we forgot. Or time moved too quickly. And life moved on before we could remember again. They say when you're raising children, "the days are long but the years are short." That is so true. I understand it well now from this vantage point. I can still remember when she was 8, 9, 10, 11. Those days seemed like they would never end. They just seemed to go on, and on, forever. But they didn't. The years flew by. And here we are now. At the cusp of 18. Suddenly. And yet not so suddenly at all.

I admitted my daughter to rehab today. It is the second time in under a year. She is only 17. Childhood trauma is no joke. Addiction doesn't discriminate. I never wanted my child to end up as a statistic. No parent does. But we live in a fallen world and sometimes the falling things of this fallen world land right on top of innocent hearts, breaking and shattering them into a million tiny, fragmented pieces. Then those broken shards stab the human heart again, and again, and every time a person starts to love or use their emotions again the stabbing causes such great distress and pain that relief is desperately sought. And needed. If a person is unable to heal in healthy relationships with loving others, such a one may seek and find any form of relief available or accessible. Enter addiction. I hope you will pray for my daughter. I hope you will pray for each other too. For the statistics indicate that in a small town like ours everyone knows somebody who is suffering with an addiction. So why don't we talk about it more openly? Why are we not more compassionate, less judgmental, and more supportive, of not only those in the throes of addiction - but too, their families and those that love them intimately? According to Data Commons, in a community with a population under 3,000, such as ours in Lincoln County, the social density statistics translate into the probability that a person in a tight-knit community not knowing a single person with an addiction is very low. So basically, we all know someone struggling in addiction. And for every person struggling with an active addiction, there are so many more people close to them who are struggling with the addiction of the addict too. So. Let's be compassionate and merciful in our judgements.

POST ROCK EXTENSION DISTRICT

Recognition of Post Rock Extension District wheat demonstration plot cooperators during National Volunteer Month!

By Sandra L. Wick
K-State Research and Extension
Post Rock Production Agent

Volunteers are an essential part to the everyday success of rural communities and the agriculture industry. These supporters devote their time, skills and energy to provide services and programs in our communities.

The Post Rock Extension District's Wheat Demonstration Plot program would not be possible without our continued and generous producers and their dedicated time for the program. The program provides producers information about specific wheat varieties as well as the growing conditions during the growing season along with disease and insect concerns and issues as well as fertilizer management. The variety plots provide a visual demonstration of how crop varieties perform in a particular area of the state along with yield potential of that variety. This is known as "seeing is believing!" Producers who observe the demonstrations and the latest methods or practices, then may apply them to their own situations. Producers can then compare the yield data from the many K-State Research and Extension experiment fields across the state of Kansas, to this local yield data, in selecting the most adaptive and productive wheat varieties.

On May 21, 2026, we will holding a tour of each of the three wheat plot locations in Jewell, Mitchell, and Smith counties with 21 different wheat varieties in each of the demonstration plots. Our 2026 Post Rock Extension District wheat cooperators include Justin Angleton and Jason Ryan, Jewell County; Mike and Gregg Jordan, Mitchell County; along with Art and Linda Befort for Smith County. We certainly would like to thank these cooperators and recognize them for their continued commitment to our Post Rock Extension District wheat demonstration plot program!

If you have more questions or would like to volunteer for a wheat demonstration plot, stop by or give me a call at any of our Post Rock Extension District Offices in Beloit, Lincoln, Mankato, Osborne, or Smith Center. This is Sandra Wick, K-State Research and Extension, Post Rock District Crop Production Agent, have a great day!

PRAIRIE DOC BY ANDREW ELLSWORTH, MD

Anesthesia: Biting the Bullet is No Longer Necessary

Anesthesiology is the branch of medicine committed to pain relief and patient care before, during, and after surgery and other procedures. It has origins in ancient times but made large advances in the last two centuries.

It is one of medicine's greatest achievements that someone can comfortably drift off to sleep, have their knee replaced, or their gallbladder removed, and wake up with minimal pain.

Ancient civilizations used herbal remedies to help numb pain with forms of cannabis, opium, mandrake, or alcohol. Even by the time of the Revolutionary War, these remained the only options, which did little for the pain of an amputation. Survival depended on the speed of the surgeon. Patients would "bite the bullet" and literally clench down on a lead bullet or piece of leather to help endure the pain and protect their teeth. Surgeries were completed in minutes, and most amputees did not survive due to infection or blood loss.

Major advances in anesthesia came in the mid-1800s with the emergence of ether and chloroform. American dentist William Morton was the first to publicly show ether's use as an anesthetic, famously demonstrated at Massachusetts General Hospital in 1846.

During the Civil War, anesthesia became widely adopted in the military and used in the vast majority of surgeries. Typically, ether or chloroform was soaked in a cloth and placed over the patient's face for inhalation. After the war, the physicians with a new understanding of anesthesia were dispersed across the country, and use of anesthesia went from a sporadic, questionable intervention to standard practice.

Epidurals are another major advance in anesthesia, decreasing the pain of childbirth, surgery, and some forms of back pain. Epidurals numb pain by delivering medication near the spinal nerves with an injection in the back. First developed in the early 1900's, epidurals became widely used in the United States by the 1970's. The addition of a catheter allowed continuous pain relief throughout labor, replacing a single injection.

Modern anesthesia has continued to evolve. Propofol, first developed in the 1970s and approved in the United States in 1989, is now commonly used to start and maintain anestheby the Leopards was history making and Sion was a part of it all. Next, Sion qualified to represent Lincoln USD 298 as a flute soloist playing at the regional and subsequently state music festivals for solos and small ensembles. The competition, sponsored by the Kansas High School Activities Association (KHSAA) and hosted by Kansas Wesleyan University, was held in Salina, on April 25, 2026. Sion received a "1" rating (Superior) which is a perfect score and is the highest rating possible. What a year for Sion Na!

So, who is Sion? Well, just another teenager really. He loves fast food, video games, movies, basketball, snowboarding, and the Polly cats. And while he enjoys music, he is not ambiguous at all about the fact that just because he is Korean, does not mean he is a fan of K-pop! Or K-drama! Please don't assume otherwise simply because he hails from South Korea. Thank you very much! He loves our traditional American Thanksgiving dinner fare, and his favorite Kansas fast-food is Poncho's. He is not alone. At least not in his food preferences. When asked about the most challenging aspect of being a foreign exchange student here in Lincoln, his answer was a little sad. Every teenager needs a social group to feel included and a sense of belonging in high school. Sion was unable to connect with a group or find a place to fit, in Lincoln High School. Even though he played basketball, was on a winning football team, and has now gained statewide recognition for our district with his flute soloist abilities, he still doesn't have a friend to count as his own inside the high school he chose to be a part of this school year. If it weren't for his exchange siblings, if you will, the Polly children, he would have no one his own age to talk to in our town.

This is not unique to Sion. He may feel alone here but he is not alone in feeling that way. That has regrettably become an echoing refrain from those who are not lifelong Lincoln residents. But the Polly family and their history of embracing students from other countries and around the world into their home and welcoming them into our community are poised to change that with each new student they bring to our school. The rich culture and wealth of knowledge students from other parts of the world bring to Lincoln is a gift that money itself could never buy. Last year, the Polly family hosted an exchange student from Germany named, Luis. The year before that they took in a student from Thailand named, Pim. Their history of inclusion and welcoming foreign exchange students to our small town is inspirational. And the gift they have given in hosting has given back to them three additional children they now claim as kin. The Polly parents, Natalie and Will have also bonded with the mothers, fathers and natural families of their host students over the years as well. They all keep in touch regularly and plan on visiting their new extended family members in their various home countries at some point in the future.

As for Sion, he will return home to his country and family of origin as soon as the school year ends. There are mixed feelings on both sides about that. While he misses his mom, dad, and 15-year-old sister at home tremendously, he is anxious to leave Lincoln. He will miss the Polly family greatly. The Polly family (and their cats) will miss him greatly too. So, what is he hoping to take away from his time as a foreign exchange student in small town America? Well, a lot. In Korean culture, individualism and a pursuit of personal fulfillment are not socially acceptable. It is frowned upon to pursue your own dreams when duty, familial expectations, obligations, traditions, and honor are perceived to be at stake when or if you ever do. Whereas in the United States and in American culture in general, the pursuit of happiness is written into the very framework of our constitution. It is an irrevocable liberty we firmly believe in as a nation to the point that we are willing to lay down our military lives to protect it. That is quite literally a foreign mindset for someone like Sion Na from South Korea. Sion hopes and plans to bring some of that quintessentially American open-minded, find your passion and pursue it, thinking home with him. In comparing teen cultures, he also found American culture to be entirely foreign to his own Korean culture in the areas of dating, an overarching and underlying respect for parents and all in authority, and most relevant to high school life, academics. Unlike American schooling, schools offer no extracurricular activities during a school day in his country. So, for example, there are no music, P.E., or art classes. Their focus is solely and strongly on academic excellence. A Korean student interested in athletic training, music, art or any form of practice outside of studies and strictly academic work must do it all after the school day is finished. Which means for an average student interested in sports, band or ballet, they may not end their day until 10 o'clock at night. So, it was understandably refreshing for Sion to be able to relax and enjoy some of the more lenient aspects of our education system here in the United States. Regrettably, one thing he will miss out on due to his return date is quite possibly the best part of being in Kansas- long, leisurely, lakeside summers. Some of the things he most enjoyed during his time here in America are our fall activities and our very elaborate Christmas decorations, with lights atop roofs and front lawns filled with the extravagant set ups indicative of the season. And Halloween. A very American experience indeed. We will miss you too Sion. Thank you for bringing your culture, class, and character to our community. You have made us a better place for your presence here this school year. You brought acclaim to our music program. We honor you for it. Thank you for coming to America and bringing a little bit of South Korea with you for our sake.

Crankin' the Creek for the Raptor's Race #2

Addison Schreiber races her way through the Fancy Creek trail during the April 12th race.

Randolph, KS - The second race of season six of Kansas NICA's mountain bike race series was held at the scenic venue of Fancy Creek State Park at Randolph, KS. Nestled among the breathtaking landscapes of the Flint Hills north of Manhattan, the athletes experienced an exhilarating mix of challenging terrain, scenic beauty and wet trails from a previous rain the night before. The 'Crankin' the Creek' NICA race was held on April 12th and hosted thirteen teams from various areas of Kansas. Student athletes joining the Raptors came from Topeka, Emporia, Hutchinson, Lawrence, Manhattan, Wichita, Louisburg, Lindsborg, Great Bend, Colby, Hays and Johnson County with 199 athletes racing bikes.

The festivities began at 9:00 a.m. with Braeden Alvis, 5th grade, completing one lap for a 6th place finish. The middle school boys were the next category with Adam Palen racing 2 laps and finishing in 10th, Braxton Sumpter in 18th (2 laps), Max Adams in 22nd (2 laps) and Logan Justus in 34th, one lap. The race laps were approximately a 2.5 mile loop of single track, winding through trees with additional spots of technical rocky hill climbs with muddy conditions in some spots resulting in tougher racing action.

Racing for the lady Raptors with a first place podium finish in the JV2 girls category was Addisen Schreiber completing 3 laps. The JV3 girls followed with Elizabeth Palen in fifth place with 3 laps and Vanessa Underwood in 17th with one lap. Marissa Jeardoe concluded the ladies with an 11th place finish in the middle school category with 2 laps.

The Varsity boys race was next with Colton Jeardoe coming in 9th with 5 laps. Brodey Schreiber led the JV3 category finishing in 5th with 3 laps, Clayton Underwood in 10th (3 laps) and Luke Hartsock in 16th (3 laps).

"The 'Crankin' the Creek' mountain bike race held at Fancy Creek State Park was an excellent venue for our second race. Our Raptors rode tough, experiencing some technical features some of them saw for the first time and muddy, wet conditions added more to the challenge," commented Coach Craig Underwood.
